problems often arise when physicians don’t inform patients about the seriousness of these warnings and fail to take factors like age and current joint tendon health into consideration.

a number of organizations, including doctors without borders, are deeply concerned that without transparency